Rev. Mr. Vines Not Called.

Leading members of the First Baptist church here say that the publication in the Biblical Recorder that the Rev. W. M Vines had been called to the pastorate of their congregation is incorrect. They admit, however, that he is being negotiated with and that the pulpit committee is awaiting an answer from him as to whether or not he would consider a call if one were extended.

COL. LAMB IS COMING

Commander of the Post Will Be Here for the Fort Fisher Reunion.

ALSO GOVERNOR AYCOCK.

Attendance of Survivors and Other Veterans Will be Large—Arrangements Continued Yesterday—Steamer Wilmington Under Charter.

Easily the leading event of the present week at Wilmington will be the Fort Fisher reunion down the river on Wednesday. The committees spent another day in active preparations for the celebration yesterday and a score of letters were received announcing that veterans from all over this and other States will be in attendance. Most distinguished of all the visitors will be Col. William Lamb, of Norfolk, Va., who commanded the post during the memorable bombardment, and Governor Charles B. Aycock, who will arrive Tuesday from Raleigh. Col Lamb is expected Monday and it is unnecessary to state that he will be royally received by members of his former command and Confederate veterans in general. He will be met at the train by a deputation of prominent men and will probably be entertained at The Orton while in the city. Both Col. Lamb and Governor Aycock will be expected to make brief addresses at the the fort.

The steamer "Wilmington" has been chartered by the Veterans for Wednesday and there will be no regular trips to Carolina Beach. Col. Woodward, of the committee, has had a board walk made over the "rocks" to the fort, and visitors will find no difficulty in getting there.

Visitors via the Seaboard Air Line may return Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, if they desire. Some of the survivors from up the Carolina Central were hesitating about coming on account of a wrong impression that they would have to spend two nights here. Such will not be the case.

Yesterday's Norfolk Virginian Pilot says:

"All arrangements have been completed for the grand reunion of the survivors of the famous Fort Fisher, N. C., which is twenty miles below Wilmington at the mouth of the Cape Fear river. The hero of the fort was Colonel William Lamb, of this city, who defended the Confederate fort against superior numbers, and after a gallant fight was forced to surrender.

"Colonel Lamb has received an invitation to attend the reunion which will be at the fort on the 12th of this month. The invitation came from W. J. Woodward, commander of the Cape Fear Camp, United Confederate Veterans and H. C. McQueen, commander of the Fort Fisher survivors.

"Colonel Lamb stated yesterday that he was so rushed with business that he thought it unlikely that he would be able to attend, but, however, the demand for his presence was so great that he did not see how he was going to stay away. Colonel Lamb has been put down as one of the leading speakers.

"There is much interest felt in the forthcoming reunion and inquiries have been received here from various Northern newspapers which will likely send representatives to the notable gathering.

"Colonel Lamb had 1,900 men with him in the defence of Fort Fisher, which fortification was constructed of sand and logs, and which is said to still be in a good state of preservation.

"Colonel Lamb said yesterday that he could not tell how many survivors of the famous battle were yet alive."

The Street Car Disorder.

Hosea Davis and the young man Williams who have just completed a term of 30 days on the roads for disorderly conduct on a street car at Ninth and Princess streets some time ago, were brought to the city yesterday and arraigned before Justice Fowler upon the charge of an affray in which deadly weapons were used. They were each held for the Superior Court and sent to jail in default of bond. John Thorp and the young man Grant, charged with implication in the same affair, will be given preliminary examination later.

Fire This Morning.

The alarms of fire at 2:15 o'clock this morning from boxes 43 and 41 were on account of a small blaze in the rear of the bakery of Mr. A. B. Cook, 109 South Front street. The amount of damage could not be ascertained this morning, but it will probably not exceed $150.

PLATT & HAAR, DRY GOODS.

New Firm of Enterprising Young Men Will Begin Business on Market Street Very Soon.

Messrs. Robert C. Platt and G. Henry Haar, enterprising youn men of Wilmington, have formed a copartnership under the firm name of Platt & Haar and will in a short time open a first-class dry goods and notion store at 114 Market street, the stand now occupied by A. D. Brown. The entire store will be remodelled; new shelving, show cases, silent salesmen and fixtures will be installed for the new firm, which proposes to have one of the prettiest and most conveniently arranged retail establishments in the State. Although comparatively small the place will be stocked with only new and strictly first-class goods throughout. The stock will include the newest of everything in dress goods, silks, domestics, gents furnishings, etc., etc., and the best class of trade will be catered to.

The young men comprising the firm are very popular and have had years of experience in the dry goods business. Mr. Platt for fifteen years has been with the leading establishments of M. M. Katz, Katz & Polvogt, A. D. Brown, J. H. Rehder, The C. W. Polvogt Co. and others and lately resigned as secretary and treasurer of the Polvogt Co. to engage in business for himself. Mr. Haar has also had wide experience and possesses an especial aptitude for the dry goods business. For eleven years he has been with the C. W. Polvogt Co., Katz & Polvogt and others and resigned the vice presidency of the Polvogt Co. Aug. 1st to form the copartnership with Mr. Platt. Messrs. Platt & Haar will leave in about 10 days for New York and other Northern markets, remaining there about a month, which will give them ample time to select a stock and buy judiciously. Hundreds of friends wish the new firm the unbounded success it is sure to win.

A REMARKABLE FAMILY.

Mr. and Mrs. Jordan W. Branch Will Celebrate Their Golden Wedding.

At their residence on South Front street to-day Mr. and Mrs. Jordan W. Branch will celebrate the 50th anniversary of their marriage. There will be present many friends to felicitate the aged couple upon the happy event in their lives and there will also be in attendance upon the celebration upwards of a hundred immediate members of the remarkable Branch family.

Mr. Jordan Branch, who is actively engaged daily as janitor at the Court House and is the head of the family, has 31 grand children and three great-grand children, 20 of the number being boys and men. Seven of his grand children will be old enough to vote in the next Presidential election, a fact referred to with much pride by Mr. Branch, whose long term at the Court House has caused him to become something of a politician, as well as an all-round citizen. The reunion of the family at the celebration to-day will be a happy one.

FIREMEN'S TOURNAMENT WANTED.

The Big State Gathering May be Secured With Very Little Effort.

Chief Charles Schnibben, Maj. Wm. F. Robertson, superintendent of the Clarendon Water Works, and the Wilmington delegates to the annual meeting of the State Firemen's Association and tournament this week will leave to-morrow for Durham. There is talk of a meeting of the Board of Aldermen to morrow night for the purpose of extending a formal invitation to the Association to hold its next annual session and tournament in Wilmington. Chief Schnibben is confident the meeeting can be secured for the city, provided those in a position to do so will make the proper effort. The tournament would bring to the city upwards of a thousand visitors for the week and it is to be hoped some action will be taken to get the laddies to come for their 1904 gathering.

CASINO DARK THIS WEEK.

Open, However, to Pleasure Parties—Music and Dancing Afternoon and Night.

The Casino at Wrightsville Beach will be dark this week, but in lieu of theatricals the managers have arranged for a series of delightful concerts and dances that are certain to become popular. The Casino pavilion will also be at the disposal of pleasure parties for all purposes.

Next week will be opened with another strong vaudeville or light opera offering that is now being arranged for. The Juvenile Minstrels closed their engagement last night and will leave to-day to go on the Wells' circuit. They gave eminent satisfaction to the amusement public here.

Dr. Wells Called Away.

Dr. J. M. Wells, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, has been called away by the sickness of one of his children at Lewisburg, West Virginia. The Rev. Stedman Black, of Fayetteville Presbytery, will preach and conduct the communion service at 11 o'clock this morning, as announced. No evening service.

THE REGISTER CASE.

State Introduced Testimony in the Murder Trial at Whiteville Yesterday.

EDMONDSON'S CONFESSION.

Told Straight Story and Was Corroborated in Part by Other Witnesses. Attorneys and Others Returned Last Night—Proceedings.

Solicitor C. C. Lyon, Hon. Jno. D. Bellamy, Col. N. A. McLean, Claude M. Bernard, Esq., I. B. Tucker, Esq., Miss Stella Shrier, the official stenographer, and others who have been engaged in the murder trial of H. B. and Jabel Register in Columbus Superior Court at Whiteville Friday and yesterday, returned last night to spend Sunday in the city and at the beach. They will return Monday morning at 6 o'clock.

The evidence for the State in the Register case yesterday developed the commission of one of the most atrocious murders in the history of the county. Whether the defendants will be fixed with the crime is another story. Mr. Bellamy, Mr. Bernard, Mr. McRackan and Mr. Tucker are guarding strenuously the interests of the defendants while Solicitor Lyon, Col. McLean and Messrs. Lewis & Schulken are fighting manfully for the conviction of the men.

The court met yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock with another tremendous crowd in attendance. A recess was taken from 1:30 to 2:30 P. M. and final recess in the afternoon at 4:30 o'clock until Monday morning. Although a dozen or more witnesses were introduced yesterday, the State will likely not rest its case before Monday at noon. It will take a day or two after that time to get in all the testimony for the defendants.

Cross Edmondson, whose confession implicated the Registers and led to their arrest, was the star witness for the State yesterday. He went on the stand after two others had been introduced in the morning and did not complete his story of the murder until the afternoon. He was subjected to a rigid cross examination by attorneys for the defendants. A synopsis of his evidence is to the effect that he went to Vineland on Saturday before the murder about 2 o'clock; went to Maultsby's store to get some crates; then to the postoffice; some one called him and saw Jabel Register, who said his (Register's) father told him if he saw Edmondson anywhere to tell him to come up to the house, he wanted to see him; went with Jabel to Formy Duvall's stables. H. B. Register was there doctoring a sick horse; asked witness what he was going to do that night; told witness that he wanted him to stay at his house and help doctor the horse; told Register he was going to the depot to attend to some business; Register said come back and let's have some fun; went back and Jabel and I went to the lot; Jabel said "stay here and I will go to the house after the old man." H. B. Register came out with lantern; there were two guns and canned goods lying on a tow-sack. H. B. Register asked me if I didn't want to make some money; said I didn't object; told me he knew a darkey staying with Jesse Soles that had between $1,000 and $2,000 kept on his person. He wanted Jabel and I to hold him up and shoot him if necessary; said Jesse Soles and Staley were wanted for selling liquor, and the officers wanted a moonshine still broken up but were afraid to go down there. H. B. Register talked on and we took the guns and canned goods and went to the Lewis place; crossed fifteen or twenty little bridges and came to a footpath; slept there all night and went down the road and found a still in running shape; drank some beer; Jabel said let's make a fire; 150 yards from the still in the woods we laid down and I went to sleep; waked up and found Jabel gone; he came back with a quart of "low wines;" ate some potted ham and crackers and remained there until dark; came back to still, drank some more beer and went to Jesse Soles'; I never saw Soles at his house; we saw a keg lying out; I kicked it and it was full of corn liquor; filled a pickle jar with liquor and stopped the bung with my handkerchief; Jabel hid the keg 20 or 30 steps away by a dead pine; said that we would carry Jim Edwards some of it and that we would get supper and go home; we got by where he said Soles lived; said perhaps Edwards was at Soles' and we turned back to Soles' house; I put my gun at the well and leaned over the well; Jabel walked up and fired twice in the window; I heard some chairs and hollering when gun fired and a shot from behind the house. I got scared, ran and hid under a pile of rails, leaving Jabel at the house; Jabel called me from the house and I finally answered; he called again and I went up; he had a couple of guns and called for mine; I got it; asked me what I ran for; told him I was scared; told me he had a notion to shoot my d—— d brains out; we went about four miles and I saw a light; it grew brighter and I asked him what it meant; he wouldn't tell me at first, but finally said he supposed it was "papa and Jesse Soles making a settlement;" I wanted to rest; it was cold and we stopped at a school house. Jabel said Orren Toon lived right up there and we went to the colored man's house; had him to build a fire, ate some of the canned goods and staid all night; left next morning, waded across a branch and went home the way Jabel told me to go.

Edmondson also told of a conspiracy the Registers had made against Toon and said he had been given a gun and told to kill him, lest he would tell what he knew. The witness told a very straight story and was corroborated by several others. The guns hid by the men in the woods, one of them taken from Soles' house, were found by Toon when they had been hid presumably where the men went to the negro's house. Toon returned the weapons to them.

Nelson Toon and wife testified that these two men went to their house about midnight and staid till morning. They had three guns. They went off toward Whiteville.

Bradley Herring saw Jabel and Cross with three guns going toward Whiteville along a very dull, woods road early Monday morning. A little nearer Whiteville David Baldwin saw Jabel by himself coming out of the woods without a gun.

Upon the convening of court yesterday morning the State had 22 witnesses in all sworn. John Manning the first said he was at Jesse Soles' house Sunday at 4 P. M. on the eve of the tragedy. He left Coleman Smith and his son there with Jesse Soles and the negro Jim Staley. There was some liquor about. That was the last time the men were seen alive.

W. A. J. Soles, brother of Jesse Soles, said he saw a light about the size of a torchlight in direction of Jesse Soles' house about midnight and again about 4 o'clock in the morning. About daybreak he sent his son to see what was the matter and found the house was burned. Then he himself went and found charred bodies of two men lying in front of the fireplace. He recognized one of them as Jesse Soles by his keys which dropped down by his side where his pocket was. He knew the keys. There was one very old key—the barn key—one of his father's old keys. He recognized Jim Staley by the buttons he wore in his shirt.

E. D. Richardson testified as to the purchase of the canned goods by H. B. Register; Lee Formey Duvall, as to the presence of the two men at the stables, and David Baldwin, Bradley Herring, Joshua Smith and Forney Richardson as to facts corroborating the story of Edmondson.

DISTRICT AGENCY HERE.

Messrs. McIntosh & Myers With the Mutual Life of New York.

As previously noted in these columns Messrs. Gaston L. Myers and Milton McIntosh, district agents for the Mutual Life, of New York, have opened handsome offices in the Masonic Temple. Their territory embraces fifteen counties in Eastern North Carolina, or about one-fifth of the State, and the district headquarters are maintained here by Messrs. McIntosh & Myers, that being the style of the firm. Mr. McIntosh has been connected with the Mutual Life for some time and has been twice promoted in the service since the first of the year, his second promotion having been to the district agency with Mr. Myers here. Mr. Myers has risen rapidly in the insurance field and his promotion is due to his energy and being thoroughly conversant with every phase of insurance. The establishment of the district agency here is an important event in the insurance life of the city.

WRECK ON A LUMBER ROAD.

Locomotive Turned Over on Colored Engineer, Killing Him Near Tarboro.

[Special Star Telegram.]

TARBORO, N. C., Aug. 8.—Joe Savage, a colored engineer on the Eureka Lumber Company's road, near Fountain, was crushed to death under his engine yesterday afternoon while returning from a water station on the East Carolina road to the junction. The engineer had gone out over the latter road to get water and acquired a speed of nearly a mile per minute, which he could not undertake over the narrow rails of the track. The engine after jumping the track and running two hundred feet, left the roadway, struck a stump and turned over, catching the engineer under it. Three others in the cab escaped injury by jumping.

The Holt Mill Merger.

The Fayetteville Observer yesterday copied what the Charlotte Chronicle had to say of the Holt mill merger: "We were informed at the office of the Holt Mills in this city to-day that the above article is entirely incorrect; that there has been no meeting in Wilmington on the subject of a merger of the Holt Mills, and that these mills have agreed to join the Southern Textile Company, of which Mr. W. L. Holt, the recognized head of the Holt Mills, is a director, and which is composed of the mills in North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi and Tennessee."

The Georgia Fruit Crop

Savannah News: "The movement of fruit from Georgia for the present season is about over, although there are still a good many watermelons to be carried, and the figures are likely to be swelled, in this particular, to a considerable extent. The crops have not been anything like last year, and it might be said that there was just half a crop of peaches, and little more than half a crop of cantaloupes. The watermelon figures are now far behind the reports of 1902, but these are expected to come up considerably. Pineapples alone show a decided increase over last year, and are fully three times as large as in 1901."

WILLIAM H. BERNARD.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

SUNDAY MORNING, AUGUST 9.

WHAT CAN CONGRESS DO ABOUT IT?

Savannah News: The cotton mill men, it seems, are going to see if Congress will not undertake to prevent corners in cotton. There is no doubt of course that Congress can prohibit the cornering of cotton, but if it consults the wishes of a majority of those who are interested in the cotton crop will it do so?

Of course the mill owners have suffered greatly this season on account of the high price of cotton. Many mills have been shut down because cotton goods can't be manufactured except at a loss. But while the mill owners may want the dealing in cotton futures prohibited, it is by no means certain that the cotton growers would favor such prohibition. In the opinion of, perhaps, a majority of them the cotton future business is a great assistance to them in getting for their cotton somewhere near what it is worth.

The cotton growers who held on to their cotton during the present season got a very good price for it—a better price than cotton has brought in many years. The cotton growers also believe that the present high price of spot cotton are due to the corner that was run during the past few months in cotton. If therefore, Congress should grant the request of the mill men for an investigation of the recent corner in cotton, it might find it difficult to get the testimony necessary to make out a case against those responsible for the corner.

Of course the cotton speculators say that it was possible to run up the price of cotton as they did for the reason that the supply wasn't equal to the demand. Whether or not this is true will appear probably when the new crop begins coming in. If the crop of this season was actually short then the price of the new crop will be pretty high, but if it wasn't then the price will drop down with great rapidity, particularly if the movement of cotton to market is rapid.

Still, it is doubtful if the mill men will be able to bring enough testimony to the attention of a Congressional committee to justify Congress in legislating against the cotton corner. The farmers have more influence than the mill men in Washington, and if they prefer that cotton futures shall be sold it is hardly probable that Congress will take any action putting a stop to their sale.

It would be a good thing for the South, however, if the sale of cotton futures were prohibited. It is a safe estimate that cotton planters and others in the South waste many millions of dollars annually by speculating in these futures. For some reason or other the Southerners are always on the bull side of the market at the wrong time, and consequently lose their money. The South would be comparatively rich to-day if her people had put no money in cotton futures since the close of the Civil War.

BRINGING BACK A FUGITIVE.

It is said that another effort will be made shortly to secure the extradition from Indiana, for trial in Kentucky, of ex-Gov. W. S. Taylor, who is charged with complicity in the plot for the murder of the slain Gov. Goebel. For three years Taylor has lived in Indiana, a fugitive from justice, under the protection of Gov. Durbin, who has refused all requests to deliver him to the authorities of Kentucky, though formal and regular requisition has been made for him. Gov. Durbin has lately been highly extolled for his effort to sustain the majesty of the law in connection with the lynchings that have occurred in his State, but his attitude toward the indicted fugitive, Taylor, is not in harmony with his recent professions. It is now purposed to apply to the United States Supreme Court for a mandamus to compel Gov. Durbin to surrender Taylor to the Kentucky authorities upon requisition of the Governor of the State. It has been a matter of wonderment to us why such a proceeding has not been instituted long since.

The Constitution of the United States, Article IV, Section 2, says: "Extradition—A person charged in any State with treason, felony or other crime, who shall flee from justice and be found in another State, shall, on demand of the executive authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime." There is no discretion allowed the executive of the State in which the fugitive is found. The accused criminal "shall be delivered up." This is a provision of the Federal Constitution and the Federal authorities must enforce it. An application to the United States courts should secure to Kentucky in short order possession of the former Governor of the State for the dealing of justice with the heinous crime charged against him. —Charleston Post.

THE FLURRY IN STOCKS.

Baltimore Sun: The semi-panic of Wednesday in Wall street was arrested yesterday, big financial interests coming to the rescue with buying orders that caused a rise. Prices of dividend-payers and gilt-edged bonds were tempting and buyers were attracted to the bargain counter. Liquidation seems to be the explanation of the slump. Stocks containing water have fallen under suspicion and in their fall they have carried down the more solid parts of the list. Good and bad were thrown on the market together and the excessive offerings depressed prices. The downward movement seems to be purely a Wall street affair, no corresponding depression appearing in the agricultural, industrial, transportation or commercial sphere. Crops are good, manufacturers are full of business, the railroads report increased earnings and trade is very brisk. Enterprise is unchecked. There is no sign of such a depression in the productive operations of the country as was plain between the years 1893 and 1898. The phenomenon we are witnessing seems to be merely a revaluation and marking down of stocks and bonds that were marked up during the period of 1899-1902. As a rule they were then marked too high and present fall, while in some cases excessive, tends upon the whole to produce a more solid and desirable situation. People whose securities are shrinking week by week feel poorer and view the liquidation with dismay, but if they hold on they lose nothing. Their paper wealth is less, it is true, but their real wealth remains undiminished.

BOOK NOTICE.

"Trent's Trust and Other Stories" forms the final volume of Bret Harte's work. There are seven stories all dealing with the old pioneer life in California which Harte has immortalized. The title story occupies almost half of the book, and presents a mystery which would have been of interest to Sherlock Holmes. The scene is laid in San Francisco and London. The six other pieces are full of Harte's sly humor, and thoroughly sustain his reputation as a master of the art of the short story. Price, $1.25. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Cambridge, Mass.

CURRENT COMMENT

—The Republican politicians will "stand pat." The Democratic party will stand for commercial progress, and the relief of American manufacturing interests from a heavy handicap—two of them, taxed raw materials and foreign tariffs. East and West there is a growing demand among Republicans for a liberal commercial policy. Their leaders will not give it to them and many of them will break away and vote with a party that is committed to commercial progress.—Philadelphia Record, Dem.

—Now the native Hawaiians want independence. Judging by the way the Hawaiians behave with what little independence they have, there is conclusive proof that, whatever they may be fit for, they are not fit for independence. Anarchy is the sort of independence into which crude races fall. If the mixed races in South America cannot get along without constant revolution, what can be expected of the yet more crude races of the Philippines and of Hawaii.—Boston Journal

—The lesson from the official career of the late P. M. Arthur, chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, if studied rightly by the leaders of trades unionism, would result in the total overthrow of the strike idea, and make impossible the rioting, assaults and murders that have attended labor outbreaks in the North, East and West during the past few months. Chief Arthur believed that unionism meant law and order and a manly maintenance of rights. As a result the order over which he presided for so many years is one of the strongest, if not the strongest, in existence. — Chattanooga Times, Dem.

SPEECHES THAT LIVE.

Oratoric Triumphs That Stand the Test of Reading.

It is often said that if a speech reads well it is not a good speech. There may be some truth in it. The reader cannot, of course, get the impression which the speaker conveys by look and tone and gesture. He lacks that marvelous influence by which in a great assembly the emotion of every individual soul is multiplied by the emotion of every other. The reader can pause and dwell upon the thought. If there be a fallacy, he is not hurried away to do something else before he can detect it. So, also, his more careful and deliberate criticism will discover offenses of style and taste which pass unheeded in a speech when uttered. But still the great oratoric triumphs of literature and history stand the test of reading in the closet as well as of hearing in the assembly. Would not Mark Antony's speech over the dead body of Cæsar, had it been uttered, have moved the Roman populace as it moves the spectator when the play is acted or the solitary reader in his closet? Does not Lord Chatham's "I rejoice that America has resisted" reads well? Do not Sheridan's and Burke's great perorations in the impeachment of Warren Hastings read well? Does not "Liberty and union, now and forever," read well? Does not "Give me liberty or give me death" read well? Do not Everett's finest passages read well?—Senator Hoar in Success.

Laughter Better Than Pills.

The cure for the bilious man is a clown, not pills. For indigestion go to a show where there are one or two first class fools who know how to make "monkeys" of themselves. The fun, however, should be clean, innocent, harmless and hearty, with no suggestion of indecency or vulgarity. In other words, the fun should be "hygienic." Fun that is foul and malodorous is unhealthful.

The best sort of fun for the dyspeptic is the fun that burlesques the follies and foibles of the odd "characters" you have met. If you can't find the show with the burlesque "artists" who can make you laugh, seek out companions who are jolly and who know the art of clowning.

Don't let any half baked idiot load your mind with his business or domestic troubles. When you get an hour or two from the desk or store, abandon yourself willingly and cheerfully to the frivolities of a jocular friend.—What to Eat.

A Stubborn Husband.

A most interesting phenomenon is the stubborn husband. He is not a bad man. He is contrary, and he has to be managed. He is usually married to a clever little woman, who is constantly devising schemes to accomplish the things which make their joint lives a success.

He has no suspicion of this. If he had, he would be so mad he could undoubtedly eat her. So all through life she goes on swinging a turnip ahead of his nose to make him go the same as though he were a balky mule. She is a cheery little body, and she grows plump with every year, and she does her smiling behind the door or she chuckles in her sleeve when he is not by. The stubborn husband is as interesting as a bug.—London Standard.

Marriage by Capture.

Marriage by capture is a very old and very widely spread custom. It prevails among the Hindoos, the Kalmucks and Circassians and the primitive races of Australia, New Zealand and America, but instead of abduction being considered an outrage by these half civilized peoples it is looked upon as a preliminary marriage rite, and, as a general rule, the coy damsel is by no means averse to the mild violence.

Abduction became so common in England in the reigns of the Tudor princes that a statute was passed on the subject, and this was followed by an act of Elizabeth which took away the benefit of clergy from the offender, and it was not till so late as the reign of George IV, that the crime ceased to be a capital offense and punishable with death.

What the White House Is.

To the American people the White House represents the personality of the president of the United States. To the politician the magic words may stand for the goal of an ambition too often associated with the deepest and most poignant disappointment, while to the historian the name may typify decisions that have marked epochs in the affairs of nations. In the mind of the people, however, the official character of the building has always been subordinate to its domestic uses. Popularly speaking, the White House is the place not where the president works, but where he entertains.—Charles Moore in Century.

A Mistake Somewhere.

"Is it true, Miss Gertie," he said, "that there are just two things a woman will jump at—a conclusion and a mouse?"

"No," she answered; "there is a third, Mr. Philip."

After thinking the matter over a few moments he trembtingly made her an offer, but she didn't jump at it. He was not the right man.

AN INDIAN'S TEST.

How He Discovered That a White Man Was a Coward.

"The Indian has a queer way of determining whether or not a man is game, judging from an experience I had some years ago," said a man who once made an educational tour of the west, "and the same little experience convinced me that the Indian's system of reasoning along this line is by no means a bad one.

"Stories had been told which brought about a clash between the Indian and a white man. The two men originally had nothing against each other. The Indian had a bad reputation—that is, he had the reputation of being a bad man, a desperate, dangerous fellow, who would fight a buzzsaw at the drop of a hat. The white man who blew into the section had in some way gained a similar reputation. He was said to be a dangerous character and a man who had never been whipped. We concluded that we would have some fun. We met the Indian and told him a long story about his new rival and reminded him that his laurels were in danger and succeeded in getting his pride stirred, and his Indian blood was soon up to the fighting point. Soon after this we met the white man, and we filled him up with the same kind of talk. He said he would take care of the Indian all right in due time, and, in short, would make him take to the woods. Shortly we met the Indian again and told him the desperate white man was after his scalp. He smiled and shook his head.

"A few days later we were talking to the white man when the Indian came up to join the group. He had spotted the stranger and knew him by sight. Without saying a word to him he walked up within arm's reach and struck the white man in the face with a rough, heavy glove. He paused for a few seconds and hit him again. 'Ugh!' he exclaimed as he wheeled around and walked away. The white man looked at the Indian in amazement, but made no show of resentment. Later in the day when we asked the Indian why it was that he did not follow up the insult with blows he told us the white man was a coward. In explaining how he knew it he said the man's 'jaw dropped' when he struck him in the face the second time with the glove and that this, with the Indian, was an unfailing sign of cowardice."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Properties of Cellulose.

Cellulose absorbs water and by its swelling provides the softest possible obstruction. On account of its low specific gravity, less than that of cork, it is valuable for life belts and may be used in large quantities to keep a seriously damaged ship afloat. Cellulose compressed and packed in the cofferdam of a ship, to form a leak belt, does not emit any unpleasant odor and does not decay for two or three years. When penetrated by a projectile it is not ignited and does not giveoff any disagreeable smoke, possessing in this respect a great advantage over rubber armor. If dry, loose cellulose be ignited, it gives out white smoke.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The cotton market opened steady with prices one to five points lower under a renewal of the pressure noted early yesterday and in spite of cables which were about two points better than expected. The weather reported over the belt, however, was unfavorable and this encouraged offerings which were also stimulated by the apparent absence of bull support. Prices, however, fluctuated within narrow limits, August sold down to 11.41, a net loss of nine points, while September selling at 10.38 on call, recovered to 10.40, then turned easier again, while the late months, though somewhat irregular, displayed a declining tendency.

DR. MOFFETT'S TEETHINA (TEETHING POWDERS)

Costs Only 25 cents at Druggists, Or mail 25 cents to C. J. MOFFETT, M. D., ST. LOUIS, MO.

Cures Cholera-Infantum, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, and the Bowel Troubles of Children of Any Age. Aids Digestion, Regulates the Bowels, Strengthens the Child and Makes TEETHING EASY.

OFFICE OF D. H. HARDY, Secretary of State, AUSTIN, TEX., Nov. 21, 1900.

I have found Dr. Moffett's TEETHINA a splendid remedy and aid for my teething children. When my oldest boy was a teething child, every succeeding day warned us that we would inevitably lose him. I happened upon TEETHINA, and began at once administering it to him, and his improvement was marked in 24 hours, and from that day on he recuperated. I have constantly kept it and used it since with my children, and have taken great pleasure in sounding its praises to all mothers of young children. I found it invaluable even after the teething period was passed.

MRS. D. H. HARDY.

A SAILOR'S MASCOTS.

Miscellaneous Collection That He Takes From the Shore.

Jack Tar is notoriously improvident, and most of our naval seamen when they get ashore spend their money, be it more or less, with a lavish hand. Shore leave is limited to twenty-four hours, but in that brief time the unrestrained sailor manages to run through about all the cash he carries with him. He plunges into a whirl of dissipation and is oftentimes cheated or robbed of a good share of his ready assets, but a percentage of the latter is also apt to go for anything that happens to strike his almost childish fancy. Mascots are the seafarer's delight, and whatever he may come across which seems to him to have a talismanic property he is bound to buy it if he can; hence when the "pier jumpers," as those on shore leave are technically called, return in well filled barges to the ship and under direction of the master at arms climb up to the deck they are likely to bring with them a miscellaneous collection of goats, dogs, parrots, monkeys, roosters, etc. One sailor on the Kearsarge, either in or out of his senses at the time, went so far as to purchase as a mascot a colored baby from its mother for the sum of 40 cents and came aboard with it in his arms. He was not allowed to retain it, however, and the child was eventually restored to its repentant and hysterical parent.

How many of the mascots may be kept on board lies within the discretion of the captain. A liberal policy is pursued in this matter. But manifestly there is a limit to the number of those that can be accommodated. The surplus is sent ashore without delay. When the returned "pier jumpers" are lined up while the ship's writer calls the roll to discover the laggards, it is one of the most perplexing duties of the officer of the deck to decide what dumb creatures may or may not be added to the vessel's menagerie. If the vessel is on her way homeward from the tropics, she usually carries a large variety of living presents for the home friends of the sailors. But these are only temporary tenants of the hold and would not be permitted to remain on board long.—Leslie's Weekly.

AT A HORSE AUCTION.

The Proceedings as Viewed From the Horse's Standpoint.

Skipper was a police horse and the pride of the mounted squad until he acquired a spavin. Then he was sent to a sales stable. His experiences there as told by Sewell Ford in "Horses Nine" were as follows:

Skipper was led into a big ring before a lot of men. A man on a box shouted out a number and began to talk very fast. Skipper gathered that he was talking about him. Skipper learned that he was still only six years old and that he had been owned as a saddle horse by a lady who was about to sail for Europe and was closing out her stable. This was news to Skipper.

The man talked very nicely about Skipper. He said he was kind, gentle, sound in wind and limb and was not only trained to the saddle, but would work either single or double. The man wanted to know how much the gentlemen were willing to pay for a bay gelding of this description.

Some one on the outer edge of the crowd said, "Ten dollars."

At this the man on the box grew quite indignant. He asked if the other man wouldn't like a silver mounted harness and a lap robe thrown in.

"Fifteen," said another man.

Somebody else said "Twenty," another man said "Twenty-five," and still another "Thirty." Then there was a hitch. The man on the box began to talk very fast indeed.

"Thutty, thutty, thutty, thutty! Do I hear the five? Thutty, thutty, thutty, thutty. Will you make it five?"

"Thirty-five," said a red faced man who had pushed his way to the front and was looking Skipper over sharply.

The man on the box said "Thutty-five!" a good many times and asked if he "heard forty." Evidently he did not, for he stopped and said very slowly and distinctly, looking expectantly around: "Are you all done? Thirty-five—once; thirty-five—twice; third—and last call—sold for $35!"

When Skipper heard this, he hung his head. When you have been a $250 blue ribboner and the pride of the force, it is sad to be "knocked down" for $35.

ANCIENT MEDICINES.

Some of the Repulsive Remedies Used by Our Ancestors.

Some of the remedies used by our ancestors ought to have been sufficient to scare away any disease without their application. Here are a few of them: "A halter wherewith any one has been hanged if tied about the head will cure headache. Moss growing upon a human skull if dried and powdered and taken as snuff is no less efficacious." Dr. Samuel Turner, who wrote on diseases of the skin, notices a prevalent charm among old women for the shingles, the blood of a black cat taken from its tail and smeared on the part affected. The chips of a gallows tied on a string and worn around the neck are said to have cured ague.

Spiders, as may readily be supposed, were in great repute as remedies. Burton, the writer of the "Anatomy of Melancholy," was at first dubious as to the efficacy of the spider as a remedy, though he states that he had seen it used by his mother, "whom he knew to have excellent skill in chirurgery, sore eyes and aches, till at length," says he, "rambling amongst authors, as I often do, I found this very medicine in Dioscorides, approved by Matthiolas and repeated by Aldrovandus. I began then to have a better opinion of it."

For stopping hemorrhages all sorts of things were used. John Bell says that for this purpose "they tied live toads behind the ears or under the armpits or to the soles of the feet or held them in the hand till they grew warm. Michael Mercatus says that this effect of toads is a truth, which any person willing to take the trouble may satisfy himself of by a very simple experiment, for if you hang the toad around a cock's neck for a day or so you may then cut off his head and the neck will not bleed a single drop." The malade imaginaire of those days pursued his hobby under difficulties.

Not a Judge.

A good instance of repartee occurred in a law court when the following conversation took place between a witness, a rustic looking individual, and the presiding judge.

Judge—You say you had occasion to taste this whisky?

Witness—Yes, my lord.

Judge—Now, are you sure you could tell the difference between good and bad whisky?

Witness (drawling)—Well, I don't quite know as I could exactly, me lord (with a knowing smile), for, ye see, I'm not a judge!—London Times.

A Failure.

"Yes, I consider my life a failure."

"Oh, Henry, how sad! Why should you say that?"

"I spend all my time making money enough to buy food and clothes, but the food disagrees with me, and my clothes don't fit."

THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER.

Used to Answer the Question, Can Water Flow Up Hill?

Since the earth is an oblate spheroid instead of a perfect sphere it comes to pass that its center is farther from the equator than from either pole. The difference is about thirteen miles. The Mississippi flows southward for so great a distance that its surface at its mouth is about four miles farther from the earth's center than at its source. Does it then flow up hill?

This is a question which the coast and geodetic survey in Washington is frequently asked to answer. The reply is that "up" means against gravitation and "down" with gravitation; hence the Mississippi does not flow up hill, although obviously it moves away from the center of the globe. Plumb lines rarely point directly toward the center of the earth. The variation from that direction has given rise to an interesting branch of the government's work.

The visible irregularities of the surface of the earth—mountains, valleys and water basins—affect the form of attraction which is known as gravitation. A cubic mile of land is two and a half times as dense as a similar volume of water. The plumb line tends to lean toward the earth masses and away from the water basins. These influences, which may be computed with scientific accuracy, do not, however, explain all of the deflections. Varying degrees of density some miles below the surface of the earth must be assumed to exist.

Trifling as these deflections are, never exceeding nine inches in a plumb line a mile long, they are of considerable scientific importance. They modify the calculations of navigators and explorers as to positions on the earth's surface derived from the stars. They thus become essential in high grade mapmaking. They also help to make the records of measurements of the earth contribute to the story of the history of the earth. In the eye of science there are no trifles.—Youth's Companion.

I consider it the best remedy that I have ever used in my family for Stomach and Bowel Troubles. 50c invested in a bottle of this medicine to be used in the beginning of any stomach trouble will often save life as well as a large doctor's bill. I have a friend whose life was, in my opinion, saved by the prompt use of Dr. Biggers' Huckleberry Cordial. For sale by all Druggists, 25 and 50c per bottle.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

SUNDAY MORNING, AUGUST 9.

TERRIBLE KANSAS TORNADO.

Two Persons Killed and Sixty Others Injured--Hundreds of Houses Destroyed and Other Damages Done.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

PITTSBURG, KANS., Aug. 8.—A tornado passed through the thickly populated mining district north and east of Pittsburg to-day, destroying hundreds of houses, mine tipples and buildings of every description, levelling, to a mass of wreckage a large portion of every camp between the Devlin-Miller shaft, north of Frontenac and the Morgan shaft, on the State line, and converting into ruin a strip of thickly populated territory eight miles long and two miles wide. At least two persons were killed and fully sixty were injured in the storm. The dead: Michael Muller, at Nelson; Mrs. Antone Sarto, at Camp No. 17.

The tornado swept across the country from the northwest and did damage in all of the mining camps which are thickly clustered in that section of the country. The destruction began at the Devlin-Miller camp, known as Millerton, and from there southeast through camps 17 and 31, Nelson, Midway, Nile, Cornell, Litchfield and the other camps great damage was done.

Most of the buildings destroyed were the humble homes of the miners and in most cases belonged to the coal companies.

LYNCHING IN MISSISSIPPI.

Negro Desperado, Who Had Shot the Jailor at Hattiesburg, Taken Out and Hanged by a Mob.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

HATTIESBURG, MISS., Aug. 8.—A negro, Amos Jones, was hanged by a mob here to-night for shooting and mortally wounding Jailor M. M. Sexton. Jones and another negro (McElroy), prisoners, seized Sexton, intending to break from the jail. McElroy threw Sexton down and two white youths, also prisoners, and Jones shot him, inflicting three wounds, believed to be fatal. A deputy and others overpowered three of the prisoners, but McElroy escaped and has not been caught. A crowd gathered and decided to lynch Jones. The fire brigade was asked to disperse the mob but refused. The mob tied the sheriff, broke down the door of the jail, and brought the negro out, a rope was tied around his neck, and he was dragged to Gordon Creek bridge, where he was hanged to a telegraph pole and pistol bullets were fired into his body. It is thought he was dead before he was hanged.

The Governor sent an order to the local militia to protect the negro, but it was not received until after the lynching.

While the mob was threatening to lynch the white prisoners also the sheriff put them on a train for Jackson.

PREVENTED LYNCHING.

Negroes Hurriedly Tried and Convicted for Attempted Assault.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

HENDERSON, TEXAS, Aug. 8.—This afternoon shortly after the conviction of Strong, a negro named Emanuel Thompson was brought in from Mount Enterprise, where he had attempted to assault a Miss Sparks. He was hurried to the court house, an indictment was returned and the trial proceeded with at once. The jury returned a verdict of guilty and fixed the penalty at 99 years' imprisonment. He will be taken to the penitentiary to-morrow.

EXPERIMENT WITH LANGLEY'S AIRSHIP.

Flew for Distance of Five or Six Hundred Yards and Plunged Into the River.

MACHINE WAS RECOVERED.

But Was Considerably Damaged—Experiment Claimed to be Entirely Successful--Photographs Were Secured of the Machine in Flight.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WIDEWATER, VA., Aug. 8.—A partly successful experiment with the fifteen foot Langley airship was made this morning from the house boat in the Potomac river off this point. The aerodrome started well in a straight line south with a velocity of seventy feet per second, and flew for a distance variously estimated at from four to six hundred yards. Some deflection in the wings soon after the launching caused her to take a downward course, which she followed rapidly and was impelled into the water under the full power of her engine. There was sufficient steam generated for a rapid flight of a half or three-quarters of a mile. Under the full pressure of this force the machine struck the water, and a moment more had disappeared from view. The machine was recovered. It was considerably injured.

The machine was taken to the house boat where extensive repairs will have to be made before another test can be pulled off.

At a given signal the model was dispatched on its voyage. The launching car was pulled back to the leeward of the superstructure and sent forward on its track at a rapid velocity. When the windward end was reached the machine shot forth. A better launching could not have been desired. The Smithsonian scientists believed that the highest hopes were about to be realized, but after the first few seconds of flight the wings were deflected and the flying machine went downward until her course was ended on the bottom of the Potomac. She was travelling at a rate of about forty miles an hour.

When the machine was raised from the water a workman attempted to cover it with a cloth, but for a long time was unsuccessful. Its mechanism and dimensions were plainly seen from the press boat, twenty feet away.

It was equipped with four wings, two on each side, about four by six feet, made of the finest oil silk and held upon delicate wooden rods. The wings were shaped like a tent. The body consisted of an intricate arrangement of fine steel rods with cylinders, motor and boilers carefully balanced. Between the two sets of wings were situated the propellers, two in number, equipped with two blades. The steering gear was situated at the rear and was constructed from material like the wings. The motor is supposed to generate something in excess of two horse power. Several photographs were secured of the machine in flight. The wind against which it flew was about four miles an hour.

Chief Assistant Manley, of the Langley expedition, made the following statement:

"The experiment was entirely successful. All the data which this machine was designed to furnish was obtained. The equilibrium was perfect, the power adequate and the supporting surface ample. No accident occurred. Some of the wood work of the wings and rudder was slightly damaged by the grappling hooks used in taking the aerodrome from the water, but no essential parts were injured. Were another test desired this afternoon the same machine could be used. I have nothing further to say at present. I shall make a full report of the test to Secretary Langley."

Soon after the house boat was closed and the party went to Washington on a tug. Before leaving both the large and small launching carriages were removed from the superstructure.

ANOTHER TUMBLE IN STOCKS.

Prices Broke Violently in the Last Hour of the Session.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, August 8.—The stock market, which opened very steady and unsettled, broke violently in the last hour of to-day's brief session, one of the disturbing factors being the unfavorable bank statement. Forecasts had prepared all hands for a loss of cash, but the increase of almost $4,000,000 in loans excited general alarm and prices tumbled throughout the list.

Union Pacific was subjected to a special drive, resulting in an extreme loss of almost five points on very large transactions. Brooklyn Rapid Transit suffered in sympathy fashion, breaking five points and a number of stop-loss orders in both stocks came out. In fact, the course of both stocks suggested forced selling.

Rumor credited a famous operator, whose fortunes have recently been somewhat impaired, with being the chief engineer in the attack upon Union Pacific. This operator, it was said, had a grievance against the Union Pacific party.

The day's business, 466,000 shares, while not large, was in marked contrast to that of last Saturday, when less than one-third that amount of stocks changed hands.

THE COLIMA VOLCANO

Continues in a State of Violent Activity. Earthquake Shocks.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

TUXPAN, MEXICO, Aug. 8.—The Colima volcano continues in a violent state of activity. The eruption yesterday was the most severe that has been known. Great clouds of smoke poured from the crater, but no ashes fell. Earthquake shocks extending along the coast as far south as the isthmus are reported. At some points the shocks were oscillatory, while at others they were of a trepidatory character, varying greatly in intensity and duration. No damages or casualties are reported.

A RACE WAR FEARED.

Mob Dynamited and Wrecked a Negro Woman's House in Oklahoma City.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

OKLAHOMA, CITY, OKLA., Aug. 8.—A mob early to-day dynamited a house in Orchard Park, which was being erected for a negro woman. The house was wrecked and the explosion shocked that portion of the city.

The whites in Orchard Park have warned the negroes to leave, but they have refused. The negroes have armed themselves and declare they will protect their property at any cost. Some negroes have stocked their homes with arms and ammunition and a race war is feared.

THE NAVY'S MIMIC COMBAT ENDED.

Both Sides Claim the Victory—Question Must be Settled by Those Higher in Authority.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

BAR HARBOR, ME., Aug. 8.—Lying at anchor in this harbor and and off the Lamoine coaling station to-night are the fleets of Rear Admiral Barker and Rear Admiral Sands, which up to to-day were engaged in mimic combat. The white squadron, as it was called, and which acted as the enemy, was discovered at 4 o'clock this morning when racing full speed through the fog for Winter Harbor, on the easterly side of Frenchman's Bay. The Olympia, flying the flag of Rear Admiral Coghlan, was about ten miles outside Baker's Island when the fog rolled seaward and was the first to sight the Texas, the flagship of the white squadron. Following the Texas were the Indiana and Massachusetts. The Olympia, by wireless telegraphy, informed the flagship of the defending squadron, the Kearsarge, of the discovery of the enemy's fleet and the message was repeated from ship to ship by this system, until it reached the last vessel on the patrol line off Cape Ann. Within a few minutes all were headed at full speed for the spot where the enemy had been sighted.

The Kearsarge was off Mount Desert Rock some twenty miles distant from the Olympia and at once started for the enemy, followed by the battleships Illinois and Alabama, which formed the reserve fleet. Within an hour the Kearsarge ran up with the Texas, a few shots were fired from the flagship's secondary battery and the search problem was at an end.

According to the claims of the "enemy" or Admiral Sands' fleet, the Olympia was so near them when the fog rolled away and disclosed their presence that under the rules of the combat the Olympia was overpowered and should have surrendered, but those on the Olympia say that they had more speed than any ship in Admiral Sands' fleet, and could have run away. This question is still in dispute among the naval officers and must be settled by those higher in authority.

The problem worked out during these manoeuvres has demonstrated many valuable things to naval officers. It is believed it has shown the efficiency of the wireless telegraphy system and as a result the whole scheme of coast signal stations and methods of the interchange of information at sea will be revolutionized.

CORONATION OF POPE PIUS X.

All Preparations Completed—The Throne. The New Pope Upsetting All Customs at the Vatican.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

ROME, August 8.—By special permission, the representative of the Associated Press was allowed to enter St. Peter's to-night to observe the preparation for the coronation to morrow. In the central aisle a wide space has been fenced off for the passage of the cortege. The chapels, including that of St. Gregory where the Pope pauses, have been richly decorated with red damask fringed with gold. The papal throne rises majestically at the farther end of great building being a bewildering mixture of gold, red and silver, and appearing altogether too gorgeous to be sat in.

The new Pope has been upsetting all customs at the Vatican. When courtiers thought to-day to give him pleasure by saying that he would have a tremendous reception at St. Peter's on Sunday, the Pope was much displeased and absolutely forbade anything of the kind, saying that he would not have it. He called his major domo, who thereupon issued the following proclamation, which was distributed as widely as possible:

"It is the warm desire of his Holiness to have no acclamation at the Vatican or Basilica and that the most devout and most religious silence be maintained."

The outcry regarding the distribution of tickets for the coronation ceremonies has assumed vast proportions. Many distinguished Catholics, especially foreigners, have arrived in Rome for the purpose of being present at the ceremonies, and they have been unable to obtain tickets, while speculators are selling them on the streets.

The government has ordered 1,000 troops to occupy the plaza in front of St. Peter's at four o'clock Sunday morning.

The departure from Rome of Cardinals Langenievx and Lecot, without waiting for the coronation, is much commented upon, as the French cardinals had refused until the last moment to vote for Sarto.

A SINGULAR ACCIDENT.

Two Persons Killed and a Number of Others Injured, Some Fatally, by a Hook and Ladder Truck.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Two persons were killed and several others probably fatally hurt by being swept off their feet by the projecting ends of the ladders on a hook and ladder truck as it turned the corner at 40th street and Ninth avenue to-day. The killed are: George Gill, an assistant school janitor, and a boy named Richard Knight. Seven other men and boys, of whom two had fractured skulls, were taken to the hospital and about a dozen other persons were taken to their homes after their injuries and been dressed by ambulance surgeons.

The end of the ladders, projecting from the rear of the truck swept over the sidewalk, where a crowd of about fifty persons were standing. Men and boys were knocked off their feet and piled up against the brick wall of a house on the corner.

THE JETT-WHITE TRIAL.

Argument for the Defendants—B. T. Ewen Charged With Lying.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CYNTHIANA, KY., Aug. 8.—In the case of Jett and White on trial here for the murder of J. B. Marcum, Judge B. Fulton French, of Winchester, opened the argument for the defendants to day. His speech was mainly devoted to the testimony of Captain B. J. Ewen, the main witness of the prosecution. After charging Ewen with cowardice and lying in the case, he declared that "God never gave a truthful tongue and a cowardly heart to the same man."

County Attorney Webster followed, after which court adjourned until Monday.

BAD ACCIDENT AT BASEBALL GAME.

Four Persons Killed, Twelve Fatally and Over a Hundred Others Seriously Hurt.

AT PHILADELPHIA GROUNDS.

Caused by the Collapse of a Board Walk Which Overhung the Left Field Bleachers—Throwing Several Hundred Spectators Down.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Aug. 8.—Four persons are dead, at least twelve are thought to be fatally injured, and fully 150 others are hurt seriously, as the result of an accident which occurred to-day at the Philadelphia National League baseball park. A boardwalk which overhung the left field bleachers fell to the street, carrying 200 spectators.

The identified dead are: Edward Graham, Alfred Rodgers, Edward Williams, aged 60 years.

Nearly one hundred persons received fractures of the limbs, lacerations of the head, broken noses, contusions of head and body, but their conditions are not serious.

Two games were scheduled between Boston and Philadelphia this afternoon and the attraction drew over ten thousand persons to the ball park. The accident occurred at 5 o'clock, while the Boston team was at bat in its half of the fourth inning of the second game, and was indirectly due to a quarrel between two drunken men in the street. The National League stands are built of steel and brick, the brick wall extending entirely around the grounds. At the top of the left field seats, and extending from the grand stand to the end of the bleachers there was a walk about three feet wide which overhung the street. It was this walk that gave way under the heavy weight.

Men who were standing on the walk were attracted by a disturbance in the street. They leaned over the railing to see what was the trouble, and this drew the attention of other spectators who rushed on to the walk. The walk became over-crowded, and without a moment's warning two hundred feet of it fell to the sidewalk, twenty feet below, carrying all who were on it. There were probably three thousand persons sitting in the left field bleachers, and the roar made by the falling timber created a panic. Instantly the spectators rose en masse and made a rush down the stand and into the playing field. Not knowing what had occurred, the ball players and others tried to stop the mad rush, but they were swept aside, and several persons were badly hurt in the crush.

Outside the grounds the scene was one of horror. For an entire block on Fifteenth street, from Huntington street to Lehigh avenue, men and boys were lying writhing in agony. Some were buried under the wreckage, others were lying in the gutters and dozens were stretched out in Fifteenth street on the car tracks. The 10,000 persons within the grounds left the place and crowded about the injured, of whom there were more than a hundred. Indescribable confusion reigned for a time because of the great crowd.

While waiting for conveyances to carry the victims to hospitals, thousands of willing hands looked after the injured. They were carried from the street and laid on the sidewalk and some were taken into near-by private houses. All houses in the vicinity were thrown open to the victims. One of the largest street car barns in the city is situated across the street from the ball park and all the wrecking cars and teams were gotten ready to transport the injured to the hospitals.

There were many good Samaritans in the great crush of people, but one who stood out conspicuously for valuable assistance rendered was the Rev. Father John A. Tracy, of St. Louis, Mo. He was a spectator at the game, and the moment the crash came he went to the rescue. He assisted in extricating many of the injured from under the wreckage. An express wagon was standing near by in which were three trunks. He mounted the wagon, threw out the baggage, directed the loading of seven injured men into the vehicle and ordered a prominent politician of the city to mount the driver's box and drive to the nearest hospital. The politician promptly obeyed.

More than half of the injured were on the way to hospitals when police patrol wagons and hospital ambulances began to arrive.

It is estimated that fully a hundred persons were injured who went direct to their homes.

An examination of the walk after the accident showed many of the wooden supports, which extended three feet beyond the wall, to be rotten. They were about two and a half inches thick and about six inches wide. They broke off flush with the wall.

President Potter, of the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club, was out of the city when the accident occurred. William J. Shettsline, who is in charge of affairs at the grounds in Mr. Potter's absence, was overcome by the accident. He had nothing to say except that there was not the slightest suspicion that the supports were weak.

GEN. MILES RETIRES.

Lieut. Gen. Young Assumes Command of the Army by Order of President.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—At 12 o'clock to-night, Lieut. General Young issued an order in accordance with the order of the President, assuming command of the army of the United States. Previously, General Young had taken the oath of office in the War Department.

At 10:30, under an order issued by Adjutant General Corbin, the officers of the army in Washington, including also those at Fort Myer, Virginia, assembled at the army headquarters and paid their respects to the retiring lieutenant general, Nelson A. Miles. General Miles appeared in an undress coat with no emblems showing his rank. The officers were presented to General Miles by General Corbin and also were presented to General Young.

The clerks in the office of General Miles presented him with a handsome silver loving cup and a large vase of flowers. General Young to-day received a large basket of flowers sent by Mrs. Roosevelt.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION

Wrecked a Number of Buildings in the City of Philippopolis.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

PHILIPPOPOLIS (CAPITAL OF ROUMELIA, BULGARIA), August 8.—A dynamite explosion occurred to-day which wrecked a number of buildings in the most thickly populated section of the city. Up to the present, portions of the remains of three persons have been discovered in the ruins.

It is stated that the explosion was the result of the police surprising a band of Macedonian revolutionists, who in their confusion dropped their bombs.

SENSATIONAL TRIAL BEGUN IN PARIS.

Notorious Humbert Family Arraigned Before Judge and Jury for the Greatest Swindle of the Century.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—The notorious Humbert family to-day faced a judge and jury to meet the charge of having perpetrated what Premier Waldeck-Rousseau described as "the greatest swindle of the century."

Public curiosity, which has followed the fortunes of the family since the days of its social brilliance, is again intensely wrought up, the chief interest centering in "La Grande Therese," who has promised to produce at this trial the mysterious American millionaires, the brothers Crawford, on whom she based her story of an inheritance of $20,000,000, which she put forward as the security for the loans she obtained, amounting to about $10,000,000.

The Palais de Justice was early this morning surrounded by large crowds, eager to gain admittance to the court room. Of the thousands who sought admission only a few hundred of the highly favored gained an entrance to the court. Coquelin, the celebrated actor, was among the throng of artists, actors and authors seeking admission, and when he was turned back he remarked the trial would be "one of the greatest dramas ever enacted." The scene within the court room recalled the tense days of the Dreyfus and Zola trials.

The prisoners were brought in from the prison of the Conciergerie, through a subterranean passage leading to the court room. As they entered every eye was strained towards them. Therese Humbert came first, then her husband, Frederic, followed by her brothers, Emile and Romain D'Aurignac. Mme. Humbert's face was pale from her long confinement. Her whole hearing, as she coldly surveyed the spectators, indicated scorn and defiance.

Madame Humbert held a whispered conference with her counsel, Maitre Labori, who defended Dreyfus at the Rennes court martial, while the indictment was being read.

Madame Humbert frequently interrupted the reading of the indictment with scornful exclamations which could be heard throughout the court room. When asked where she lived, she answered: "In prison."

The interrogation of Madame Humbert furnished the chief incident of the day, but failed to develop any surprises or bring out the whereabouts of the mysterious Crawford brothers, her statement consisting mainly of vague declarations of her honesty. As the judge read extracts from the Dossier, reviewing her family antecedents, she waived Maitre Labori aside and rising, with notes in her hand, insisted on directing her own case.

Judge Bonnet inquired about her eccentric father, who assumed the title of "Count." Madame Humbert emphatically upheld the family character. When the judge stated that Romain D'Aurignac had followed his father's example in assuming the title of "Count D'Aurignac" Romain half rose and exclaimed, "It is false! It is false!"

The Age of the Harp.

The harp, which was suggested by the lute, is ascribed to Jubal, 3875 B. C., and was King David's favorite instrument. The harp was used by the Welsh and Saxons, and also by the ancient peoples of Ireland. One of the oldest harps in existence is in the Dublin College museum, and originally belonged to Brian Borothme, king of Ireland.
